They were deep in thought and had said little since bidding the painter farewell. After a short distance Jay slowed his pace and came to a halt, staring up at a group of tall Chironian trees standing on the far side of the stream alongside a number of familiar elms and maples that were evidently imported-genetically modified by the Kuan-yin's robots to grow in alien soft. "The Chironians are into a whole new world of particle theory. That means they can produce lots of antimatter economically. With that they could make matter-antimatter annihilation bombs, superintense radiation sources, guided antimatter beams, maybe who knows? But it has to be something like that." After walking another mile, he came to the all-night market that he'd specified for the rendezvous. "And so smart," Aunt Gen said proudly, as if the girl were her daughter. "Micky, did you know she's got circumference of each iris. Fury fired her rant, which grew hotter by the word: "Witch with a broomstick up your ass, witch bitch." Oblivious of Micky, Sinsemilla sat, elbows propped on her knees, chin cupped in the heels of her hands. Smiles and grins relieved the solemn atmosphere that had seized the room. From the direction of the table, Jean emitted an audible sigh of relief. Bernard grinned up at the screen. "Thanks," he said. "We're all glad to hear it. Talk to you again soon." Kath gave a quick smile and vanished from the screen. "So when are you going to show it to me?" Jay shrugged. "Any time you like." "You going to Jersey fight now?" "Hey, back off, soldier," Ci said suspiciously. "We're still strangers. Later, who knows? Give it time."
